The South Dakota Soil Health Coalition is proud to announce details for the upcoming 2020 South Dakota Soil Health School, which will be held August 31st - September 2nd, near Mitchell, SD. Reserve your spot today!

The agenda features classroom style presentations from producers and technical experts from across the state and region, as well as hands-on experiences in the field. Area producers will share their challenges and successes with various methods for improving soil health.

Space is limited.

Early registration is encouraged to participate. First session starts at 8:00 AM Monday.

Final session will end at 1:00 Wednesday.

Classroom sessions will be held at the Highland Conference Center and field demonstrations will be held on the farms of Craig & Gene Stehly as well as the Edinger family.

The Soil Health School is designed for agricultural producers & anyone with an interest in learning how to manage soils for resiliency and profit.

The experience helps build confidence in what you are doing and confidence in making the investment to change to farming practices that are outside the norm. For anyone interested in soil health, this is one of the best events to attend.

I gained a lot of new knowledge about land management and believe it is so important that we take care of the earth and soil around us.
